Note from Roger:

Because of circumstances that have occurred in the last several months, I am sorry that I have to reenact the following:

-Buzzard sign up recaps may not leave the desk

-Only sign up those who are currently in the building

The reason I must do this is that some people take the recaps to their lanes before I have added the averages and handicaps and do not return them. Also, people have been signed in that do not show up and have to be removed causing a new recap to be filled out. I understand most of you wish to bowl with your normal grouping, but we also have several members that can help fill lanes. We try to keep all lanes to 4 per lane but we have had some instances where a lane has 5 and 3 lanes down there are only 2 bowlers. Please help us try to fill all lanes evenly.

Bowling Schedule Change:

Since the tournament in Dallas has been changed to the 2nd weekend of the month, the scheduled gathering on August 9th at Del Mar has been rescheduled for August 16th.

FUNNY AND INTERESTING FACTS

JOKE OF THE MONTH

A gentleman was just out of surgery for appendicitis. His wife sat calmly beside him holding his hand while she waited for him to wake up. A few minutes later she looked over and his eyes were fluttering. He opened them, looked directly at her and said "Hi Beautiful" and went back to sleep. Well, a little startled and blushing, the wife wondered what he was thinking as he hadn't said anything that sweet to her in ages. A few minutes later, his eyes opened again, and he looked over and said, "Hi ya Cutie". Then proceeded to fall back to sleep. Feeling a bit hurt with the downgrade from beautiful to cutie, the wife patiently waited. When he woke up again, she said, "Honey, why did you downgrade me from Beautiful to Cutie just a few minutes ago." And without missing a beat, the husband looked at her and said, "The drugs are wearing off."

WOULD YOU BELIEVE?

(Provided by This Is True)

Christian Stanfield, 15, said he was bullied for months, but officials at Pennsylvania's South Fayette High School did nothing about it. He thought they needed "some kind of evidence, some way to understand what I was going through," he said. So he recorded the bullies on his iPad. His family went to the school's principal, and that's when tolerance turned to zero tolerance — but not quite as Stanfield hoped. Officials made Stanfield delete his recording and gave him detention, and Principal Scott Milburn called the police, who charged Stanfield with disorderly conduct. The local district attorney's office dropped the charge. "We do not believe this behavior rises to the level of a citation," said a spokesman.

MORON!!

(Provided by News of the Weird)

Perpetrators on the run frequently unintentionally reveal their whereabouts by their need to show off on social media, but Christopher Wallace has reached legendary show-off status. Being sought in connection with a January burglary, he went to his home in Fairfield, Maine -- and posted on the Snapchat site that that's where he was. Police arrived and, during their canvass, noticed a brand-new Snapchat post from Wallace -- mischievously writing that police were in his home right then, searching for him, but that he was cunningly hiding in a cabinet. Police opened the cabinet and arrested him.

ARE YOU SERIOUS?

(Provided by News of the Weird)

Kimberly Kitchen, 45, was a successful estate lawyer in Huntington, Pennsylvania, with more than 30 clients for the BMZ Law firm (so successful in her 10-year career that she had just been promoted to partner and had served as president of the local bar association) with but one complication -- that in December she was finally revealed not to be a lawyer at all. Her diploma, bar exam results, and other documents were forgeries, according to the Pennsylvania attorney general's office, which filed charges in March. [Associated Press via Yahoo News]
