Monthly Trivia:

Frances Ethel Gumm was born June 10, 1922, Grand Rapids, Minnesota, Frances was the youngest child of Ethel Marion and Francis Avent "Frank" Gumm. Her parents were vaudevillians who settled in Grand Rapids, MN, to run a movie theatre that featured vaudeville acts. She and her 2 sisters toured through out California as the Gumm Sisters, and even appeared in several early movies. The group broke up when her older sister left to marry a Muscian in Reno Nevada. Frances then signed with MGM where she recorded several songs, as well as starred in several "backyard Musicals" with Mickey Rooney, and went on to make 5 other movies with him. Her physical appearance created a dilemma for MGM. At only 4 feet 11.5 inches, her looks did not exemplify the more glamorous persona required of leading ladies of the time. She was self-conscious and anxious about her appearance. "Frances went to school at Metro with Ava Gardner, Lana Turner, Elizabeth Taylor, real beauties," said Charles Walters, who directed her in a number of films. Her insecurity was exacerbated by the attitude of studio chief Louis B. Mayer, who referred to her as his "little hunchback." In 1939, after MGM was unable to sign Shirley Temple to do a movie based on a Frank Baum book, they decided to "let" Frances do it. The movie did not do well on first release, due to high production costs, and lower ticket prices for children, the movie did not show a profit until it was rereleased. Frances, however did receive a honorary Juvenile Academy Award for her portrayal. Frances, due to her frantic schedule for doing the movies for MGM concurrently with the touring schedule and signing arrangements they made for her, She and other young performers were constantly given amphetamines as well as barbiturates to take before going to bed. This regular dose of drugs led to addiction and a lifelong struggle and contributed to her eventual demise. She later resented the hectic schedule and felt that her youth had been stolen from her by MGM. Despite successful film and recording careers, awards, critical praise and her ability to fill concert halls worldwide, she was plagued throughout her life with self-doubt and required constant reassurance that she was talented and attractive. She starred in several more movies during her adult years, but spent more time doing concerts and tours. She did several television specials as well as had her own series for a season. She died of accidental barbiturates overdose in London, and was interred in New York. Who was Frances better known as?

FUNNY PAGES AND INTERESTING FACTS

TRUE STORY OF THE MONTH

An elderly man lay dying in his bed. While suffering the agonies of impending death, he suddenly smelled the aroma of his favorite chocolate chip cookies wafting up the stairs. He gathered his remaining strength and lifted himself from the bed. Leaning against the wall, he slowly made his way out of the bedroom, and with even greater effort, gripping the railing with both hands, he crawled down the stairs. With labored breath, he leaned against the door frame, gazing into the kitchen. Were it not for death's agony, he would have thought himself already in heaven, for there, spread out upon waxed paper on the kitchen table were literally hundreds of his favorite chocolate chip cookies. Was it heaven? Or was it one final act of heroic love from his devoted wife of sixty years, seeing to it that he left this world a happy man? Mustering one great final effort, he threw himself toward the table, landing on his knees in a rumped posture. His parched lips parted, the wondrous taste of the cookie was already in his mouth, seemingly bringing him back to life. The aged and withered hand trembled on its way to a cookie at the edge of the table, when it was suddenly smacked with a spatula by his wife, "Don't Ernest!" she said, "They're for the funeral."

Quote of the Month

Whatever you do, do it with all your might. Work at it, early and late, in season and out of season, not leaving a stone unturned, and never deferring for a single hour that which can be done just as well now.
- P. T. Barnum

ON THIS DAY IN HISTORY

On June 2nd, 1835 P T Barnum & his circus begin 1st tour of United States. Barnum, a shrewd businessman, said He simply indulged in the truth and made it seem more appealing. He knew what America wanted and he delivered. "Nobody ever lost a dollar by underestimating the taste of the American public" Barnum was one of the very first circus owners to move his circus by train, which greatly enlarged Barnum's geographical reach, given the lack of paved highways in America at that time.

Trivia Answer:

Frances Gumm was better known as:
Judy Garland, June 10, 1922 – June 22, 1969

MORONS:

43-year-old Gary Allen Banning was at a friend's apartment when he spotted a salsa jar containing a mystery fluid. Thinking that it was an alcoholic beverage, he helped himself to a sizeable swig of gasoline! Naturally enough, he immediately spit out the offending liquid onto his clothes. Then, to recover from the shock, Gary lit a cigarette.

Whoosh! Gas+Flame=Combustion.

Firefighters responded to calls reporting a fire in the apartment, and found a badly burned man sitting on a charred carpet. The following morning, Gasoline Gary died at the UNC Burn Center in Chapel Hill.

Gary's friend was a mechanic and kept the jar of gasoline near the kitchen sink to remove grease from his hands. Two mistakes caused his death. The first mistake was minor: gulping a golden liquid from a salsa jar. But the second mistake--lighting up a cigarette to recover from the shock of taking a mouthful of gasoline--was a decision that an average five year old would consider questionable.

"you can't fix stupid, but stupid eventually fixes itself."
