THE FUNNY PAGE

JOKE OF THE MONTH

Three guys that all worked building high rise buildings sat down to lunch one day. The first one opens his lunch and says, "Tuna fish, tuna fish, I hate tuna fish. If I get tuna fish one more time I'm jumping." The other two guys open their lunches and say the same thing. The next day the first guy opens his lunch and says, "Ah, ham and cheese." The next two open their lunches and say, "Tuna fish, tuna fish, I hate tuna fish. If I get tuna fish one more time I'm going to jump." The third day the first two guys open their lunches and both got their favorite sandwiches. The third guy opens his lunch and says, "Tuna fish, tuna fish, I hate tuna fish. All right, that's it. I'm jumping." So he goes to the edge and jumps off. The other two look on not believing what just happened. After a while the first guy says, "Gee, that's sad. He actually jumped." The second guy says, "Yeah, the worst part is that he packed his own lunch."

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

Carnell Alexander at one point owed about $60,000 in child support for a kid he did not father (according to a DNA test) and knew nothing about, but despite "successfully" challenging the claim 20 years ago, he still owes about $30,000. The mother who accused him long ago admitted lying (in that naming a "father" was necessary to get welfare benefits), and while a judge thus wiped out Alexander's debt to her, the state of Michigan nonetheless still demands that Alexander repay benefits it had paid to the mother. COMMENTS FROM THE PAST

"I'm just glad it'll be Clark Gable who's falling on his face and not Gary Cooper." - Gary Cooper on his decision not to take the leading role in "Gone with the Wind."

MORON

Police in Minot, N.D., say that Robert Alan Pullar, 30, was driving in town when he managed to fall out of his car and run himself over. Amazingly, he was able to get up, chase down his car, get back in, and continue driving. Police tracked him down and got him medical care — and then arrested him for DUI, driving with a suspended license, and refusal to submit to a chemical test.

ARE YOU SERIOUS?

“We’re tremendously sorry for what this man went through,” said Cara Smith, the Executive Director of the Cook County (Ill.) Jail. A man who had come at about 6:00 p.m. on a Saturday to visit his son at the jail “was told to proceed ahead and stay to the right to go to the visitor area,” Smith said. “He encountered a door that was propped open and he went in and the door shut behind him.” The unidentified man was trapped in a maximum security holding area, which is not used on the weekends, and no one knew he was there. About 1:00 a.m. Monday morning, after 31 hours of no food, water, or access to restroom facilities, the man came up with a way out. “Brilliantly,” Smith said, “he broke the sprinkler head off which alerted the fire department so they were able to identify where it was coming from and they went in and found him.”
